Editorial Review

Review

Kiwi Magazine, October 2009

“Thirty plus years later, this inspirational book tells the story of a young emperor’s daughter without vision, who manages to ‘see’ with her fingers and open up a whole new world. It’s a beautiful story and will offer children a perspective on our many senses and how we can use them to experience our world. The illustrations are glorious and could stand alone as a work of art.”

Smithsonian Pan Asian Pacific Studies’ “Book Dragon” blog, 10/09

“Without a doubt, the most remarkable part of this striking new edition of Jane Yolen’s 1977 title are the pictures... the tale comes to vibrant life with newcomer (this is only her second children’s title!) Daniela Terrazzini’s magical pictures...The transformation of Hwei Ming’s world, both in her story and on the actual page, is astonishing. Terrazzini’s talent truly presents a magical gift of technicolor sight.”

Minneapolis Star Tribune, 11/27/09

“Beautifully embossed pages invite young readers to trace their own fingertips across the page, learning how the princess “grew eyes on the tips of her fingers.”
